

As the registration has only been a requirement for home inspectors since January of this year, the effectiveness of the regulations cannot be fully evaluated. The intent of the law was to protect buyers from negligent home inspectors.