we have taken the telephone wires out of the bill, fortunately, which I went along with. I think Senator Chambers would be against killing coyotes, jack rabbits, pheasants, quail. I think he is against all of that type of thing so I recognize where it comes from, and as Senator Keyes said, I don't suppose he is adverse to eating a beef or a lamb chop dinner or something like that but wild game is a different thing. I hope that you turn down this amendment and get on with the bill and advance the bill. If there is any...I could give quite a lengthy talk on the merits of dove hunting and the reasons for it but I really thought that during this part of the session that this bill has been around quite some time. I figured you have heard the arguments, all of you, from some place or another for and against the bill and I didn't think that any or all the talking in the world, at this particular time, would help or hurt the bill. I figure your minds are made up but if I need to spend a lot of time, I am certainly willing to spend mine, if you are willing to spend yours. But I think the Senator DeCamp...I mean, Senator Chambers motion should be voted down and we advance the bill.

SPEAKER: Senator Richard Lewis.

SENATOR R. LEWIS: Mr. President, I want to support the Chambers motion. I think that one of the things that hasn't been discussed here is that generally this season will be opened early in September. It will run up until the pheasant and quail season. It will subject landowners to a steady stream of hunters from approximately September 1 until after the first of the year. I think that this is something that really hasn't been considered here. Another thing, when you talk about this being a game bird, in states where they have seasons, and I am thinking especially of Arizona, most people don't even pick them up. They are nothing but a target. If you want to legalize a target, that is one thing but to call them a game bird is stretching a point quite a little bit. I certainly support Senator Chambers in his motion.

SPEAKER: All right. Senator Dickinson.

SENATOR DICKINSON: Mr. President, I just want to thank Senator Lewis for putting words in my mouth, as he did yesterday and today, and telling me why I am voting like I am and to assure him I haven't quite decided whether I am in love with this bill yet or not. I just haven't been turned on completely and I will decide later.

SPEAKER: Senator Schmit.

SENATOR SCHMIT: Mr. President, members of the Legislature, I have to rise to oppose my good friend, Senator Chambers, on this motion. The argument has been advanced, just recently again, by Senator Lewis, and there is some justification for it because there is a certain amount of harassment by the farmer from the hunter but I would like to suggest that, perhaps, that harassment is minor compared to that which we unleash every day when we turn the bureaucrats loose, and one way or another, the various laws we pass here to send out to harass the landowner and the farmer and the businessman and the irritation
