more than your priest. The little Protestant says, well, Christ, he should, you tell him everything.

PRESIDENT: Thank you for those St. Patrick's Day jokes. The Chair recognizes Senator Don Eret.

SENATOR ERET: Mr. President and members and guests, the gradually expanding boundaries of the 32nd District claim several former legislators. First I would like to introduce Senator Willard Waldo from Dewitt. And I think many of you will get to meet his wife, Beulah, over at the hotel tonight. Next I would like to introduce Senator Arnold Ruhnke and his wife, Elizabeth, from Plymouth. Arnold served from 1955 to 1968. Then I would like to introduce Senator Richard Maresh and his wife, Ruth, from Milligan. Our District also claims a former legislator, Albert Schoenrock, who now resides in Fairbury, Senator Joe Vosoba from Wilber, Senator Eric Rasmussen from Fairmont, and Senator Sharon Apking from Alexandria. Thank you.

PRESIDENT: Senator Chris Abboud. Senator Fenger, George Fenger.

SENATOR FENGER: Mr. President, my predecessor, Frank Lewis, couldn't be here this afternoon. However, since I am probably the only one that recognized a late arrival and he is due recognition, I would advise the body that immediately behind the glass in his usual bashful self is one of our late peers, the former Senator Jerry Koch from Ralston.

PRESIDENT: Have all of the members in the Chamber introduced your guests? I would like to make sure, Senator Bill Moulton was on the list to come. Senator Eric Rasmussen, is he around? Senator Rasmussen, Eric is still serving on the Public Service Commission. Senator Vickers, Lester Harsh is apparently not here, right? And Bill Brandt, Bill attended our business meeting just an hour ago and Jim Dickinson, did he show up? All right. Well, the order of the day now is, we have used all this time for the present members to stop arguing with themselves and the social hour from five to six is for everybody and from six on for the former members and the press and anyone else and
