

substandard. And before I finish my closing, I'm going to tell you why some of the Democrats are opposing this motion even though they know that LB 830 is bad. But Senator Brashear has such a good way of opening so many avenues for discussion. He said it's better to have tried and fail than to have done...than not to have done anything. I thought he was going to say than to have lost, but they tried and failed with BMW, BMW...tried and failed with Mercedes Benz, tried and failed with Pfizer, tried and failed with Micron. So I guess you can become inured to failure and that, in itself, becomes a justification for continuing to do the things that have not succeeded. How long does it take a person to learn? How many times must one be slapped upside the head to realize that what is being done is not advisable? I'm going to tell you how these other...these big companies have used Nebraska because Nebraska has been so accommodating and willing to give everything. They used Nebraska to leverage more concessions from other states. That's what Nebraska is used for. Nebraska is never the place where the company intends to settle. It is the one that can be used for leverage because Nebraska is one of those silly ones, if I can use an analogy, who, if you say, if you don't give it to me, I'll get it from somebody else. Then they say, well, I'll give you more than they will give you. See, that's one of the oldest lines that young boys even use against young girls. If you don't give it up, somebody else will. And Nebraska, through its Legislature, is still falling for it. Why don't the Democrats support this? Because the Governor boasted that if a repealer was brought in, it would take 30 votes to override a veto. I'm putting it on his bill and the Democrats know that he cannot veto LB 425. So all of that puffing and blowing would be for nothing, so the Democrats have to bail his chestnuts out of the fire even though obliquely, to use one of Senator Brashear's statements, one of his words,...Senator Brashear has praised the Governor. A movie about Eddie Murphy called Trading Places where he was put in the place of this white guy, the white guy was put in his place, and they both became what each other had been and Eddie Murphy was in jail and he was bragging about how tough he was and what all he had done to all these cops who had put him in jail and this one little guy said, well, if you had had this fight with all these cops, where is the blood? Eddie Murphy said, I'm a karate man, karate men bruise on the inside, not on the outside. Then he showed how he makes this screaming sound and makes this move, he said, and that's called the quart of blood technique. When you holler and do that, a quart of blood falls out of your enemy. That's what these companies do
