

Senator Chambers. (Chambers amendment, FA181, appears on page 1921 of the Legislative Journal.)

PRESIDENT ROBAK: Chair recognizes Senator Chambers to open on his amendment.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: And, Mr. Clerk, I didn't complete the writing of that, so here's what would be added to that. In line 16, after injury, we would strike the period and add "to animals", and then the definition would read the way I discussed it with Senator Dierks. I was going to take it in two bites, but really it isn't necessary to do that, I think, once it's clear what I'm talking about. And this is the way the definition will read. "Veterinary medicines means medicines for the prevention or treatment of disease or injury to animals."

SENATOR DIERKS: Can I ask you a question, Senator Chambers?

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Yes.

PRESIDENT ROBAK: Senator Dierks.

SENATOR DIERKS: If you're going to do that, are you going to do that with Section A and Section B, too, in that same paragraph? If we're going to do it, let's get the whole thing over with. Agricultural chemicals means or shall include?

SENATOR CHAMBERS: I will do it on...

SENATOR DIERKS: Each...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: I will do it on all of them. But, see, they're talking about that's for those who are growing these crops. It's primarily a veterinarian's bill, we know that. These other things are thrown in. Medicine either means medicine or it doesn't. It doesn't include anything else. So if you feel that I ought to do the same thing in these others, I don't mind doing it because it does narrow the scope and I don't mind doing that.

SENATOR DIERKS: I don't...I guess I don't really understand why you want to make that change. I think the "shall include" says the same thing it means shall...that means does.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: No, it doesn't.
