

February 20, 1973

going to have farmers all over and when you damage the individual farms, you have damaged agriculture all over Nebraska. When you've damaged agriculture all over Nebraska, the individual family farm, you've made it possible, in fact, probable, that the conglomerates or whatever you want to call them are going to have it easier to take over.

(End of Belt #9)