

March 1, 1973

years of hard service, at low pay, they get the magnificent sum of twenty dollars a month pension, that's the maximum, about the maximum they can get, now this is one of the reasons why we don't have stability in our state employees here, and I think if we take a look at this whole picture and get the fringe benefits and the things that go with the employment of people in comparable industry, we'd find out that we can have as stable as a system of employment as the people can in private industry, because the work is no harder and the hours are no different and the, everything else that goes with it is no different, except the economic differentials that exist between private industry and our state employees. Now I am just

(End of Belt #7)