had ulterior motives how would this have gotten done in LB 8 anyhow? The fact that I'm sponsoring this particular amendment gives rise to your suspicions why I can't help that, I don't have anything ulterior motive in mind, Senator Carpenter.

SENATOR CARPENTER: Why I'd be the last one to accuse you Senator of anything like that.

SENATOR GOODRICH: Well you just did.

SENATOR CARPENTER: No I didn't. I'm only saying, my friend, that if we do this for you, in order to do a specific thing, then we automatically by changing the law allow others to do greater things. It isn't what you got in mind and I got in mind it's what we do by the changing of the law.

SENATOR GOODRICH: Senator Cavanaugh says he has got some more information he'd like to spend on this.

SENATOR CARPENTER: Okay.

PRESIDENT: Go ahead Senator Cavanaugh.

SENATOR CAVANAUGH: Senator Carpenter, what, the sections that he is eliminating here pertain to a prohibition against endurance contests and that statute has been on the books for a good long time, I think it probably came from out of the twenties when those things were put to great of use, now it eliminates walkathons, talkathons, bikathons and any other endurance contests, I assume that that could be construed to even mean a track
