

April 11, 1979

LB 378

if your challenge fails the court goes ahead and makes its determination taking into consideration the findings of that panel but the court is not bound apparently by the findings of that panel. Then if the court rulings go the way the accused does not like take a secondary appeal which would then cover everything. If the second case that I just mentioned is to be, an appeal would be taken from the court and its evaluation of the panels finding. Would there be a re-examination of what the panel itself did or only an evaluation of the courts utilization of what the panel did? Maybe nobody is interested really enough to offer me answers to these questions, but I do want them into the record because I think that they have substance and I would like to have them answered if it is possible.

SPEAKER MARVEL: Senator Nichol, are you ready to advance the...

SENATOR NICHOL: Yes, Mr. President. Senator Chambers questions are....

SPEAKER MARVEL: I'm sorry we have to consider Senator Chambers amendment now.

SENATOR NICHOL: No, no, I don't believe Senator Chambers wants to introduce his amendment right now, is that right Senator? Oh, is it up there now? I didn't know it was up there.

SPEAKER MARVEL: Hold the phone just a minute. Senator Nichol, we will take up Senator Chambers amendment first and get action on that and then come back to yours as amended. Senator Chambers, do you want to address yourself to your amendment?

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Yes, I have a very serious reason for offering this amendment. I know that the World Herald is concerned and interested in the protection of society, but I think that those people who may be victimized by individuals who repeatedly commit assaults they ought to be protected too. So, if we are going to tinker with the law, let us deal with improper actions by one individual against other individuals. Don't just zero in on the public area. Suppose somebody gets bashed in the head with an ax, but does not die. The person is sentenced. Then the person gets out and then bashes somebody else on the head with an ax and serves the time and gets out and bashes somebody else on the head with an ax. Why are you concerned only when genitals contact genitals but you are not concerned about other injuries that could be