

SENATOR DE CAMP: Gotcha.

SENATOR REUTZEL: There is no need for a detached facility.

SENATOR DE CAMP: No, you are not quite right, not quite. In those towns if you are going to treat them the same way as you do a bank in Omaha or Lincoln, they should have the privilege of going in the surrounding community. If you are going to have branched banking be honest about it, not just branched banking for A and B, branched banking for the whole group, countywide, statewide, whatever, so that that little bank you are talking about does have an option to utilize the legislation. You have pointed out the precise problem. It is all kinds of special legislation for a limited group. I am saying they can sit down and all be fair and worry about their real enemy, if you want to use the word enemy, or competition and that is the savings and loans and they are so busy trying to kill off each other that they never get anything constructive done.

SENATOR REUTZEL: Well, Senator, I somewhat disagree with what you say. It does appear to me that if we do have a small town and the bill does permit a detached facility within city limits, the figures that you gave are somewhat misleading, I think, because a small town, again, within city limits does not need a detached facility and let them go beyond their city limits opens up a new can of worms for Omaha, Lincoln, Fremont, Grand Island. So I just wanted to bring that point out. I do think it is just somewhat misleading.

SPEAKER MARVEL: Senator Dworak, and then Senator Merz and then Senator George and then Senator Hefner and then Senator Keyes. Senator Dworak.

SENATOR DWORAK: Well, Mr. President and colleagues, I have a question of Senator DeCamp. Senator DeCamp, I listened to part of your debate and as usual there were about fifteen people back here talking to you on the floor. Did I hear you say that you want to kill the bill? Did you make that statement? Do we have a kill motion in front of us? Is that what we are debating?

SENATOR DE CAMP: That is what we are debating.

SENATOR DWORAK: You do have a kill motion?

SENATOR DE CAMP: I have a kill motion.
