different. You have a large crime and you have a small crime. Small crimes such as speeding doesn't make any difference, Senator Johnson just got through saying if you are innocent or not...it is a small price to pay for being innocent and yet being convicted, losing points on a driver's license. If it happens enough, Senator Johnson, you can't drive, but I guess that is a small price to pay in this free society...to be innocent but yet be convicted. Senator Johnson was not there. He is not a member of the Judiciary Committee. He wasn't there when we had the radar units side by side and we see discrepancy after discrepancy clocking the same automobile, sometimes not clocking a thing but yet here we are we have got a reading on the screen. Small price to pay to be innocent and be convicted of something. I can tell you I have got a lot of people in my district. I have had several people call and want transcripts of these hearings. They are going to court. It is not a small thing to them. It might be a $10.00 fine and it might be one point on the driver's license, but they are innocent and they want transcripts of the hearings. They want all the information they can get and they are spending hundreds of dollars, not to save that one point or that $10.00 because it is a matter of principle, because they are innocent, and they feel in their own mind that they were doing no wrong and yet they are picked up and with the laws that we have today there is no way to fight radar, but that is a small price to pay, Senator Johnson says. So we should all bear that in mind next time we go down the highway and we get picked up, and if we weren't doing it just remember it is a small price to pay to be innocent and yet convicted, according to Senator Johnson.

SENATOR CLARK: Senator DeCamp.

SENATOR DeCAMP: Well, to Senator Johnson and some of the others, that think the $10.00 fine is a minor matter and that the issue is minor and we shouldn't...aw, what the heck, worry that much about it, whether it is accurate or inaccurate, I would...I would take one of the famous phrases out of one of the most famous Supreme Court decisions, principles, and recite it for him, kind of applying a Nebraska touch: If one Nebraskan owes the other one and a half million Nebraskans the duty to follow the law, then the other one and a half million Nebraskans owe that one Nebraskan the duty to have an enforceable predictable law that is uniformly applied. Now I have very honestly received, I would guess, a hundred, hundred and fifty calls over the summer from truckers and I run a...or in my area we have several major trucking firms, and Senator Johnson
