

March 26, 1980

LB 1002

a little bit but I would like to ask perhaps Senator Koch just exactly how this would work within a school system where you have the state Department of Education, the overseeing control, then you have the Department of Alcoholism in this same system and then while he is at that I would like to ask him how he plans to get parental consent to do these things?

PRESIDENT: Could we put this over? Actually we are talking about...that goes more to the general amendment, does it not, than to the change of a word. I see this as a... just as...if you are for the change of the word that is all we need, for or against the changing the name.

SENATOR KAHLE: I will pass if I can't get a chance to speak again.

PRESIDENT: The only thing this amendment deals with is...

SENATOR KAHLE: I have been passed over so much this morning I thought I would take the chance when I had it. Thank you.

PRESIDENT: Well I figured that is what you were doing. No, you're first up if somebody doesn't call the question. All right, I am going down the line. For what purpose do you arise? I'm going down the line here. Senator George.

SENATOR GEORGE: I want to call the question on the Koch amendment to the amendment.

PRESIDENT: Well we are going to go down the line here. Some might want to talk to it. Senator Keyes. Senator Simon.

SENATOR SIMON: Mr. President, members of the body, I think I can discuss this amendment with Senator Koch because it actually gets down to the concerns that I had about Murphy's amendment. Senator Koch, you alluded to the comment an adolescent at least gets into part of the aspect in terms of younger adults and I think Senator Murphy addresses part of the problem but the concerns that I have is that even with this passage of this amendment which I think is the first step, I think that we had a bill in the Miscellaneous Subjects Committee which dealt with mandating of public education that these types of courses be taught and then you made the comment that this in fact, would be the first step and I guess I don't follow you because it seems to me that one of the problems that we ran across was that the public schools in some cases were noncooperative. Would