

along with the dean. I see a member of the implementation committee, as well as a member of the original Friends of the Capitol Environs, Alice Abel sitting in the back, and the ongoing coordinator of a lot of our project as well as projects affecting this building environs, Robert Ripley, who is the manager of restoration and promotion for the State Capitol. Again, I thank you for the time. I ask that you give thought to the establishment of a permanent Capitol environs commission. Thank you.

PRESIDENT: Thank you, Mr. Hand. The Chair would recognize the guests who are in the Chamber today for this particular purpose, particularly the professionals and interested citizens who are promoting this project. Thank you very much for participating here with us. With thanks to Senators Vickers and Harris and Governor Crosby and Mr. Hand, the Chair would declare that as a result of your ceremony I can now declare that this Chamber will be forever more known as the George W. Norris Legislative Chamber. With that, these proceedings are closed. Thank you very much.

CLERK: Mr. President, while we are waiting, I understand there will be executive meeting of the Banking Committee under the north balcony for purposes of selecting a vice-chairman. Banking Committee north balcony.

PRESIDENT: (Gavel.) The Legislature will resume our regular proceedings. Will all members take your seats. Very well, if members will please take your seats we will resume our regular proceedings. We were in the process of considering LR 2. If there is no objection, we will discontinue, temporarily, the consideration of LR 2 and take up, at this time, LR 3. Will the Clerk read. (Gavel.) Order in the Chamber, please.

CLERK: (Read LR 3.)

PRESIDENT: Chair recognizes Senator Hoagland.

SENATOR HOAGLAND: Mr. President and colleagues, Gail Wishnow, Barbara Wishnow, family and friends, it is my pleasure today to speak to LR 3. You know each of us, as we reflect back on our lives, recognizes that we have been specially imprinted by a few number of people. As we look back on our childhood and youth we recognize that there have