SPEAKER NICHOL: Tomorrow morning, which is Friday, we will have Final Reading for about an hour and a half and I think if they are not out now they will be shortly your agendas for tomorrow and we will continue on with General File and, of course, we will go all day tomorrow but the following week, Thursday, of course, you will wind up at about approximately one o'clock, twelve-thirty or one, something like that next week. I guess that would be about a week from today, wouldn't it, and then we are off Friday, Saturday, Sunday, and Monday. So Final Reading tomorrow morning and then back to General File. Senator Carson Rogers, you haven't said much today. Would you like to say something to us today about adjourning until tomorrow at nine o'clock.

SENATOR ROGERS: Yes, Mr. Speaker, I make a motion we adjourn until nine o'clock tomorrow morning.

SPEAKER NICHOL: Okay, you heard the motion. All in favor say aye. All in favor say aye, please. Thank you. And opposed nay. We are adjourned.
