

than the lure of the church. Maybe since the churches have gone into gambling they ought to go into the liquor business too. Drink a little whiskey, a little wine. They drink wine anyway, wine and crackers on certain Sundays to have the Lord's supper, or whatever they call that. After they get a little liquored up, go play a little bingo, pull a full pickle cards. Then they are all in a mellow mood and they can sit down and listen to the preacher and he can be a little lit up too, right, Senator Labeledz? Light him up too. I bet you'll have a far better spirit in the churches. Baptists won't criticize Catholics, Catholics won't condemn Episcopalians, Episcopalians won't condemn Fundamentalists, and we'll find that the spirit in the bottle has been able to do more than that ghost spirit that all of them talk about, but which does not influence any of their conduct. I said all that to say this, I'm opposed to Senator Hoagland's amendment.

SPEAKER NICHOL: Senator Hoagland, did you wish to say something?

SENATOR HOAGLAND: I'll withdraw the amendment, Mr. Speaker.

SPEAKER NICHOL: The amendment is withdrawn. Do you have anything else on the bill, Mr. Clerk?

CLERK: Nothing further on the bill, Mr. President.

SPEAKER NICHOL: Senator John DeCamp, do you want to do anything with your bill?

SENATOR DECAMP: I would like to have another ten minutes of sermon from Ernie. No. I move to advance it.

SPEAKER NICHOL: You've heard the motion. Senator Lundy, your light is on. Did you wish to speak?

SENATOR LUNDY: (Response inaudible.)

SPEAKER NICHOL: Okay. Machine vote has been called for. So we are...the question is the advancement of the bill. Mr. Clerk. Oh, machine vote. Machine vote, okay. We're voting on the advancement of the bill. Three are still excused, Senator DeCamp. Senator DeCamp.

SENATOR DECAMP: Mr. President, the amendment that they are
