government, you have to put people who are trained to do business there. Without taking more of your time, I would ask for the adoption of the committee amendments.

SPEAKER NICHOL: Senator Haberman, then Senator Goll. Senator Haberman.

SENATOR HABERMAN: (Response inaudible.)

SPEAKER NICHOL: The question has been called. Do I see five hands? Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: (Microphone not activated)...tired, and you can vote to silence me if you will, but I think this is atrocious if you even allow a vote to cease debate at this point. There has been no discussion whatsoever.

SPEAKER NICHOL: Okay. We will go on with Senator Beutler.

SENATOR BEUTLER: I would just request of the Speaker that the debate be allowed to go on. There is nobody on the other side, Mr. Speaker.

SPEAKER NICHOL: Senator Goll, you are next, but may I introduce some guests of Senator Goll. In the north balcony are 55 fourth graders from Lyons-Decatur School in Lyons, Nebraska, and teacher. Would all of you folks stand and be recognized, please. Thank you. Senator Goll.

SENATOR GOLL: Mr. Speaker and members of the body, I have listening with interest to this debate which has gone on now for at least one hour and twenty-seven minutes. I have been listening with interest because I happen to be one of those people who has a degree in accounting and pretty soon we are going to get all of these amendments in here where I might even qualify to run for the State Auditor's job. I don't know whether I would have the ability or the capability, but I have listened with interest to the amendments and I am quite sure that those who put the amendments on don't know what they are talking about because Senator Chambers kept asking Senator Vickers and Senator Vickers kept replying, well, I think so, I presume so, must be that way. And I am quite sure that this body doesn't...it doesn't really appreciate what we are talking about here this morning. But I think the most significant thing that we must look at is that we are trying to decide for the people who live in this
