

on this but somehow or other it just rubs me the wrong way when my tax dollars are paying for people to lobby against a position that I disagree with and then we allow them in the Chamber to do that lobbying. And I am going to insist that these people are back of the glass doors, not under the roped area, back of the glass doors where they belong, where they have been for the last week and a half.

SENATOR MARSH: I apologize, Senator Vickers, that is the correct decision that persons will be behind the glass doors who are registered lobbyists. I am sorry, not registered lobbyists. Senator Haberman.

SENATOR HABERMAN: Madam President, does this then mean that if a school superintendent or if a county board member or somebody else from my district comes in and sees me and we sit over there and they are talking to me and they want to talk about a bill, I have to ask them to leave because that is what you are...is that what that means?

SENATOR MARSH: I think if they are actively lobbying, Senator...

SENATOR HABERMAN: Well, then...

SENATOR MARSH: ...and I am in the Chair, that is what I am saying.

SENATOR HABERMAN: Well, but if they are giving me their opinion of a bill, is that lobbying? I mean, if we are going to have a rule, if we are going to start changing rules and enforcing it, then that means no school superintendents, no county board members, that means we are going to exclude everybody because...

SENATOR MARSH: No, sir, it does not. It means when we are discussing one bill under discussion, that that is an entirely different situation and you and I both know that.

SENATOR HABERMAN: Okay, I am through with my point of order. I will come up and wait when I speak...

SENATOR MARSH: Senator Lamb.

SENATOR LAMB: Well, Madam Chairperson and members, I rise at this point to oppose the Vickers amendment as strong as I
