veto. I think it's very, very important. It's a message to the people of our great state. They expected this and they are disappointed and we've got to stand behind the people. That's who we represent and I feel that we must do this. I know that we've got problems and we'll take care of those problems, we always do. If it takes a tax increase, that's what we will do, but whatever, we're going to do it. But as Senator DeCamp said, we do not want to punish those who really need the money, who need that help and in the long term it will actually save the state many dollars with when you help these individuals and give them back into a successful life, they are back into the tax roll and they are paying their taxes just like all the rest of us. But at the present time many of them are burdens and we've got to help them and the intent of this bill was to help those people. There is no question in my mind about this and with the many letters that I have received and the phone calls that I have received, they will be disappointed if we do not override this veto. And I was one of the co-sponsors and I never made any deals. I'm speaking from my own conscience. Thank you.
