

alcoholic beverages as is allowable now could be transported in a vehicle, any part of it. However, an unopened container could not be in the part of the car where you are driving. It couldn't be in the car, the unopened. The amendment Senator Vickers offered would have accomplished that. That amendment was defeated. So now we have one of those hypocritical do-nothing propositions that can be used to trick the public into thinking that something was being done. You can still have unopened containers...you can have open containers of alcoholic beverages in the car. And, Senator Nichol, I have got to share with the legislators something you shared with me and I think what is being done today demonstrates the truth of what you said. And some of you may have heard this, but there was a gentleman who was about to give up the ghost because he had a brain problem and his wife liked him, believe it or not, Senator Hefner, after all the years she had spent with him, so she wanted to get him a brain transplant. They went to the brain surgeon and he said he had several choices that the individual could select from and they went to the brain of a farmer. And she said, no, he has farmed a lot of his life and I am sure he doesn't want to be a farmer. He wants to, at his age, relax and take it easy. But how much would the brain of the farmer cost? And the brain surgeon said, $20,000. So then they came to the brain of a brain surgeon, which is what this individual was, and the cost of that brain would have been $60,000. And the lady said, well, no, I don't think he would want to be involved in that, he couldn't even watch the slaughtering of animals so I am sure he couldn't cut into somebody's head and deal with a living palpitating mass of tissue, so I don't want that. So, Senator Wesely, they came to the selection where you found the brains of legislators. The brain of the farmer was $20,000, brain of the brain surgeon was $60,000, the brain of the legislator was $500,000. So the lady wanted to know why it cost so much, and the doctor said, you have no idea how many legislators it takes to make one brain. This bill demonstrates the truth of that.

SPEAKER NICHOL: Senator Sieck, would you like to close on the advancement of the bill?

SENATOR SIECK: Yes, Mr. President, and a lot of the things that Senator Chambers said is true. If it is accessible to the driver, you are subject to a citation. And also with that amendment on there, if an individual in the back seat
