

details. So I look it up. Further details, currently Chadron State College employs a director who is required to teach for about 40 percent of his or her workload. This means teaching one or two classes each semester, in addition to the work as office manager, advisor, et cetera. He or she is assisted by one full-time secretary. So I say to myself, you know we are looking for money, we've got to be careful, why shouldn't Chadron State College continue using a part-time teaching director in this cooperative venture as opposed to a full-time professional doctoral person to operate the Cooperative Education Program with Nebraska Western Community College. Pretty simple. It is a $36,000 savings. I offer the amendment.
