

will allow those that the subdivision of government if they own the building, they will be allowed there too. Also, on page 4, 510 video machines seized. This was in New Jersey. It seems like the more gambling you have the more organized crime you have. And so I just don't think that we want them in Nebraska. On the next page, page 5, the title is "Atlantic City's Great Gamble Not Paying Off". These video slots, although they will bring in a lot of money, I don't think they are the answer to our tax problems. I think we have to be up front. If we spend more money, then we are going to have to raise our sales and income tax. I just don't think we can pick up all this extra cost by legalizing video slots.

PRESIDENT: One minute.

SENATOR HEFNER: Therefore, I would ask you to support Senator Pappas's kill motion.

PRESIDENT: The Chair recognizes Senator Hartnett.

SENATOR HARTNETT: I call the question.

PRESIDENT: The Chair would determine that we have not had a full debate at the present time and would turn down the question at the present time. The Chair recognizes Senator Barrett.

SENATOR BARRETT: Thank you, Mr. President and members of the Legislature, I, too, rise in support of the motion to indefinitely postpone the bill. I was very happy to be a co-sponsor of the other motion to kill this particular bill. Senator Hoagland's comments about money, money, money, I guess triggered my thinking into suggesting to you that the lust for money, big money, real big money is the glue that holds the gambling industry together, and that is one of the things, frankly, that scares the heck out of me and should scare each of you as well. I don't know if you know how man outwits his nearest mental competitor, the monkey. He does it by tying a small-neck bottle to a tree and then in the bottle he places some food or some bait, as it were. The monkey can reach his arm into...through the neck of a bottle and grab the food or the bait. When it is clutched in his fist, of course, he cannot then withdraw the food or his fist from the bottle itself and he simply won't let go. He is stuck. He is trapped by his own stubborn greed, and I
