

principles don't mean that much, yet they're going to yap about it on some other occasion. We have to help the poor farmer. You don't think there is some poor farm girls who get pregnant and need some help? But you're talking about these guys who run around here on the combines and get loans that they can't pay off. Those you want to help because in the mind of the people here farmer means white American male and he must be helped at all costs if it means squandering an amount of money necessary to send 27 people from this Legislature trotting off to Washington to have a door slammed in their face. We upped that money, didn't we? But we can't help the babies. Then we're going to have other people paragons of virtue on the cutting edge of social justice who become enraged at the prospect of increasing gambling. Why? Because it might hurt the children. You're not going to have to worry about that because if we can find a way to keep the children from coming here, they are no longer an issue. If we let them come here, what we ought to establish as the policy of this state is what was contained in a tract by Jonathan Swift called "A Modest Proposal" where you take the children of the poor and with all the protein and the other nutritional substances in the bodies of these children you prepare them as delicacies for the rich. That's what our legislation is aimed at. Those are the ones we're concerned about.

PRESIDENT: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Of what value are the poor if not to give sustenance to the rich? Their labor is extorted. Their bodies are crippled. Their minds and spirits are stunted so that the rich can play. You did the right thing on that other vote because it told the truth about this Legislature, but you told me something that I really didn't want to accept as a fact even though a lot of times I stand up here and talk about how heartless this Legislature is. Farmers, look what the Governor will do. He'll run out here and run the risk of violating the law by saying certain hogs can't come here because they may have been treated with an antibiotic that can cause a rare, hardly ever contracted disease among human beings and this Legislature will probably support that, but when it comes to babies we say, no, and slam the door on them. I'm against this amendment. I'm against this method of budgeting. I'm against the whole thing and every time one of these propositions come up I'm going to speak against it and nothing is going to give me
