

make money, although they are college undergraduates. They wouldn't have allowed John McEnroe to quit Stanford and go into golf (sic) and make tons of money. They would not have allowed Reggie Jackson to quit college and go into baseball. As a matter of fact, Nebraska has a baseball player now who is thinking about going to the pros. So in baseball they can go to the pros as an undergraduate. In tennis and golf they can go into the pros as undergraduates; in every sport except football because football generates a lot of money, it's an unpaid farm system that the professionals have, and the colleges are "complicit" with the pros in denying these players a right that every person has which is to enter into the occupation or employment of his or her choice. Now I had said something earlier about the possibility of Nebraska cheating. I am not interested in Nebraska going on probation. I am not interested in any player losing eligibility. But as we talked about competition this morning...

SPEAKER NICHOL: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...as men and women of the world we know that to meet the competition you do what the competition does. They were talking about reducing the tax for Ak-Sar-Ben so they could compete with other race tracks. I mentioned how Senator DeCamp has gotten changes in the banking laws so these banks can compete with other banks. The TV networks are at each other's throat. The only reason WOWT, KETV and KMTV come down here is because the others do. These reporters are not interested in being here. The only reason they cover the Legislature is because others do. They compete. Whatever the competitors do they all have to do. If all of them would agree not to do it, none of them would be here, some of us wouldn't either. The newspapers are the same way. If you look at the way politicians carry their political campaigns on, they do whatever the other politician is doing. Russia and America are in an arms race because they each feel they have to meet the competition. Even if you get to Godzilla and Rodan, they...

SPEAKER NICHOL: Time is up.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...have a competition to meet and they are forced into the same thing that Nebraska is. I'll tell you, Senator Nichol, as sure as I'm standing here that Nebraska does the same thing to be competitive that the
