

I saw a minute ago jumping up and down saying "haa haa haa haa haa." That is what Indians are. I saw it, just a few minutes ago. Now, if we were talking about something pertaining to Catholics and it was a serious discussion and I would do this and say "bhaa bhaaa bhaa bhaa" pretending I'm speaking Latin, people would take offense and be very upset wouldn't they and say that kind of religious bigotry should not be reflected on this floor, but the Indians have always been a source for joking. Whether it is the Tom Mix movies, the Walt Disney cartoons, every depiction, white man's joke.

PRESIDENT: Your time has expired.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Don't pass this resolution.

PRESIDENT: There are no other lights on. Senator Pappas, do you wish to close?

SENATOR PAPPAS: Yes, Mr. President and colleagues, as much as I hate to do it, I want to disagree with Senator Chambers on the passage of the resolution. I do deserve that the Indians deserve something because basically for the last 200 years they have got very little and I want to add a few things that have been going on and things that we have been talking about. One I want to criticize Senator Haberman for his shame, shame, shame speech. I think he is turning his hearing aid down a little bit, and if Senator DeCamp and Senator Johnson want to try to...if you want to relate to the fact to pull something, what they would have did was put the house under call immediately when we started this discussion and that would have disallowed, that would have disallowed one of the top lobbyists that works around the Legislature an opportunity to send probably about 50 notes into this body to try to take votes away from this. They did not do that. They did not do that. They were fair and open and above the board and they tried for the 30 votes to do it. That was not accomplished. One of the reasons some of these agencies aren't around anymore because they did not have the ability or the money to hire some of the top lobbyists in the legislative body that surrounds the body. They do not have that money. They do not have the ability. They do not know when the opportune times are to get bills passed or get them stopped. So, unfortunately they have to work at a lower level. So for this reason, I think we should at least adopt the resolution for the Indian
