

January 9, 1986

absolutely striking to me about the chart is the growth in bills. We have had an inflationary growth in the last 11 years in our bills but we haven't expanded the number of days in the session, we haven't increased the salary of state senators, we haven't expanded our energy levels, we haven't expanded our emotional commitments, we haven't all become superwomen and supermen. We are the same ordinary human beings that existed in 1975 and in 1976. We are no different in composition but we have allowed, we have tolerated, we have permitted our work load to increase. Now I sit here at half-time changing the rules for the second half. My change is only to be for this half. It is only for 1986. It is not for '87 or '88 and I am saying, wait a minute, the first half that we went through was the most bruising first half I have been through, period, bar none. I have never been through any more bruising first half. I spent 90 days in legislative session along with each one of you, and at the end of the 90 days, I still have 332 bills left out there to handle. Then I came back. I came back in September and spent seven days in September trying to correct a small problem. Then I came back in October. I spent one month in October. Now I would have thought during that one month's period of time we could have disciplined ourselves to limit our bills only to what the Governor's call was but, lo and behold, in one month's time we managed to bring in something like 37 different bills, all of which required some kind of a public hearing, and out of the 37 different bills that were brought in, 27 of them were beyond the call. We are an undisciplined, unruly bunch. That is inherent I suppose in us. I am simply saying, wait a minute, let's have a few standards here so we don't burn ourselves out and the public out and we can handle our job more responsibly. So the first item I suggest is we simply reduce the number of days this year only for the introduction of bills from 10 to 7.

SPEAKER NICHOL: Thank you. Senator Chambers, then Senator Haberman.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Mr. Chairman and members of the Legislature, I don't know why we have to go over the same ground again and again unless maybe what Senator Johnson says is true, we are just an undisciplined, unruly bunch. But, Senator Johnson, as a reader of history if not an expert in it, you are well aware of how during the days, the early days of the House of Representatives, they not only
