

that we may proceed with debate on the bill.

SENATOR HABERMAN: Well, Mr. Speaker, okay, you've made your ruling. I think you are dead wrong, but I'm not going to challenge you. I just bring it to the attention of the body that possibly in the future we have destroyed fiscal impacts because to get one I guess you have to look by who it's drawn, or where it's drawn, or what is going on because I can't understand this. Well, I can understand it, but I can say that I don't like it. It either is going to save money, or cost money, or it isn't. That is a fiscal impact. It's been stated it's a fiscal impact, but it's stamped "No Fiscal Impact." So I think you should take this into consideration. I'm not personally casting stones at anybody because I don't believe in doing that. It is a rule, it is a stamp on a bill, and I'm just concerned about it. With that, I thank you, Mr. President.

SENATOR LAMB: The Chair recognizes Senator Scofield, for the second time.
