

SENATOR HOAGLAND: I am not in the position to make that judgment, Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Well, somebody didn't get the idea across to him that he shouldn't make babies with somebody that he is not married to. Is that correct?

SENATOR HOAGLAND: Well, Senator Chambers, that is a fact of life. I don't think any of us...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: We are not...I know what it is, the baby being here establishes not only it as a fact of life but as a biological fact.

SENATOR HOAGLAND: And we have got to be concerned about that child, not about the transgressions of his parents.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: So now, where is the man who is the daddy?

SENATOR HOAGLAND: I can't tell you that.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Where is the mother?

SENATOR HOAGLAND: With...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Who has the child apparently.

SENATOR HOAGLAND: With the child.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: So we have a scoundrel who has left a woman with child, absconded...

SENATOR HOAGLAND: And the answer...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...and the woman could be very bitter now toward that man.

SENATOR HOAGLAND: That's right.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: She could be bitter toward the one who brought that man into the world and didn't put proper principles in him, if not with teaching, with a baseball bat.
