

They are Iran, Iraq, and Syria. There is an individual considered the premier terrorist and he goes by the name of Abu Nidal, and he lives in Syria. He has his bases in Syria and America knows it, but why will not the cowardly green ghost attack Iraq, Iran, and Syria? The Pentagon has stated the reason. They are too well armed. They have contacts with Russia and America may suffer casualties. If they are talking about terrorism, why won't they extradite members of the Irish Republican Army whom England considers to be terrorists? The English have refused to join America in sanctions against Libya because they say that their ally, America, will not extradite to them terrorists of the Irish persuasion who kill British, who kill women, who kill babies, who kill clergy persons, and America says, no, these may be terrorists to the English, but they are freedom fighters to the Americans. So with all of the terrorism everywhere, and America not only harboring these terrorists, but allowing money to be raised for them, guns to be run in their behalf, they are going to waste money attacking Libya on the coast of Africa. This is something that is difficult to understand unless you grasp the American psyche. Unable to win real battles such as Vietnam, not learning the lesson of Dien Bien Phu that was taught to the French, America bungled in there and lost. So what do they do? They commission Sylvester Stalone to produce a movie about a man named Rambo who jumps out of the water and pulls helicopters out of the air, who single-handedly does what the entire American military machine could not do with planes, napalms, bombs and all the other sophisticated weaponry of modern warfare. Rambo was not enough so Chuck Norris (phonetic) comes along and he goes and rescues people that others wanted to say were not even alive any more, and he wins the Vietnam war by himself. So America is a nation of symbolism and mythology. Their heroes are not legendary. They are mythological. They do not exist, and the same type of craven cowardice that is demonstrated on battlefields throughout the world where America is involved...

PRESIDENT: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...can be found in some of the actions on the floor of the Legislature, and I mean every word of what I am saying. I want it into the record so that I can obtain transcriptions and broadcast it everywhere that I am able to to demonstrate what this Legislature is. Not everybody, there were 27 people who tried to do what was right. I look at the voting record and there are people taking free rides now. They say I am running for reelection so I can't vote on this issue, but I
