

cannot be totally solved, we can at least keep a program going and try to expand on it which will give people the wherewithal to at least understand what is happening to them and try to figure how to pull themselves out of it with the least psychological damage possible. Maybe I don't like the concept of farmer, but if I look beyond that maybe I will see a father, a mother, and children, a family, which happens to be in a rural setting, and terrible things are happening to them that they do not understand. So rather than see them jump out windows or drink poison or put bullets through their head like a young football player did because people never care until we have a carcass here, and then we say if we only had known. We do know but we don't care. I believe that as a show of good faith we ought to adopt what Senator Johnson and Senator Vickers are offering to us this morning.

SPEAKER NICHOL: Time. Senator Vickers, then Senator Higgins, then Senator Nelson.

SENATOR VICKERS: Mr. President and members, again in response to the duplication issue raised by Senator Lundy, first of all, when you look at the human body, I suppose you can say that your arms are a duplication because you have got two arms. But then you could probably also say, well, no they are not quite duplication because they are not exactly the same. So the Good Lord when he was making the human body decided we didn't need unnecessary duplication and didn't give us two right arms or two left arms because you couldn't use them both at the same time perhaps, but you can use your right arm and your left arm together so it is not necessarily, at least in my opinion, unnecessary duplication to have two arms. Now if there is a whole lot of folks out there needing a service, and Senator Lundy referred to it, that maybe the University of Nebraska through its Extension Service could do it, well, I will tell you we have got one county agent in our county but I don't know anybody else from the University of Nebraska that is out there to help us. Well, we do, I guess, if you count Curtis which I don't know whether it is still going to be there or not because of our actions but, nevertheless, how do you expect all those people who need to take advantage of this type of an operation to be able to go to the extension service and get it. Now I thought about that too, Senator Lundy, how the devil do we do this? So I said, you know, there is another segment out there that might be available
