think we should keep our nose to the grindstone and to continue to work these matters out to the best of our ability. Mr. Clerk, we were on number one, weren't we? Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Mr. Chairman, I know you said that this is not debatable, but since it is before us, it might be advisable for us to discuss it now because it is going to be discussed, I mean the proclamation, so (interruption).

SPEAKER NICHOL: I think, Senator Chambers, two or three do wish to speak about this and I think we will take probably fifteen, twenty minutes to discuss this so that if any of you want to (interruption).

SENATOR CHAMBERS: So can I go ahead then since you recognized...

SPEAKER NICHOL: Yes, go ahead. We will give you each five minutes to start with and see how we come out, Senator.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: When you look at the way this thing is framed, the only way you will have any idea that it is amended is because you see the words "Amended Proclamation". You don't see in the first paragraph that the Governor said I did call the Legislature into session, speaking in the past tense, and saying that in conclusion I directed the members of the Legislature be notified of this amended call and it is not phrased very well. But even beyond that, the constitutional provision that he cited said that the Governor is authorized to call us into special session under extraordinary conditions or circumstances, and when we are called, we can enter only into the business only that we were called to enter into or upon. The only business that he called us for were all of these things other than the income tax increase. So at the time of the call, a statement is made of the business that constitutionally we can consider under the call. The call having been made is made, period. I don't think from the language of the Constitution the Governor is authorized to change the call and add additional matters. He wrapped the package and tied it when the initial proclamation was delivered to us notifying us of his call. The only things contained in the call were those things that he put in the package. Now if he wants to deal with other matters, he is going to have to offer another package, and the only way he can do that is to
