question of special education or have been and will have to be in the future, continually frustrated by the lack of influence that we have over that program. I urge the body to act on the recommendations that I have. I understand that it will cause difficulty for state operations, it will cause difficulty for higher education, it will cause difficulty for local government as well. I urge you to consider that if you take the action now, 60 days from now you'll look back upon this session and say that the action that we took was relatively insignificant against the problems that you as a body will be facing in the regular session of the Legislature as you deal with next year's budget. I urge you to take the action as swiftly as possible and as reasonably as possible and then get on to the problems of this state. I want to take this opportunity and, in fact, take the opportunity to overstay my welcome to identify as an interested party, some things that I believe the people themselves are going to be wrestling with next year and some things that we as citizens are going to want state government to address. I believe the problems in agriculture in 1987 are going to worsen. We have in excess of a billion dollars of federal subsidy flowing into the State of Nebraska through 55,000 farms and ranches from the bottom up and that subsidy most assuredly is going to be gradually withdrawn and the problems of declining sales on main streets across this state is going to worsen. The Chapter 12 bankruptcy provisions that is not part of our law will further contribute to some short term credit problems in Nebraska just as it provides assistance to borrowers who are in trouble. I'll predict to you as well that in 1987 the Farm Credit System is going to reach a point where they are going to have to go to the federal government and say that we need additional money and that request is going to come at the very time when the cost of the farm program will have reached an intolerable level and it may be difficult to get that kind of money into the Farm Credit System and if that happens, the credit problems in Nebraska and agriculture could worsen in a substantially increased fashion. The problems of agriculture are going to be severe in 1987 in short and will be severe in 1988 as well and the people of the state are going to be turning to its policy makers saying, what can you do to help? The problems in primary and secondary education are not going to go away and they are oftentimes less a function of money than we are led to believe. We still need to address the question of how those school districts ought to be organized and I have talked both with proponents and opponents of LB 662 and there is general recognition that something needs to be done and that reorganization question is not going to go away. We look as
