

it, and I mean this, over my dead body. And I will not be an easy one to convert into a corpse or a carcass. This man has done the kind of mess up work which apparently makes the R&D authority want to get rid of him. So he's going to pick a project that he opposed, that a lot of people have worked very hard to make viable. And I find myself working with business persons whom I'm supposed to have so much out of common with that I can't even exist in the same city with him. But we have come together and put together a program that's working. Now the man who was opposed to it, because he's losing his job, is going to try to take it. I'd be crazy to sit still for that. The state is the cow with the udder. The udder is the source of the milk sought by the north Omaha and other programs. So you mean to tell me that I'm going to have a man in charge of the program who has kicked the cow that has the udder that the program has to depend on for milk. Mr. Bishop has not shown good judgment. If the R&D authority is going to retain him in his position, when he has shown his presence to be so hurtful, that is for them to determine. But he is not going to come to north Omaha, especially in view of the arrogance, the racism, the paternalistic attitude he has shown toward various minority persons who were seeking assistance through the north Omaha program. He sets up meetings with the people and does not attend. Maybe I touched on some of this the other day. He told some people with one program that they should get an expert from AT&T to come in and explain their program. They obtained the expert, and Mr. Bishop didn't show up. Then when he finally did get around to having a meeting, he asked people questions that were answered in their business plan. He expressed opposition to accountants helping people with business plans. But serving on the board of that program, he had agreed to approve programs whose business plans had been put together by accountants. I think...

PRESIDENT MOUL: One minute.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...Dutton and Associates is considered a reputable firm, and he was opposed to them helping this one group that for some reason he is opposed to. The man is like an albatross. And like the rhyme of the ancient mariner, where the man killed the albatross, they hung it around his neck because it caused the wind to stop blowing and the ship was sitting on calm waters, they made him wear that albatross. You're not going to take the albatross from the R&D authority and hang it around the neck of the north Omaha program. I'm going to rise
