

January 9, 1992 LB 424

second time you print it in the paper you have their attention and they're going to read it. I have had publishers of small newspapers tell me that three times is way too many, two times is plenty. One of them even told me last year that as far as he is concerned we don't even have to print them, nobody could understand them anyway. Usually, when we have amendments, constitutional amendments, referendums, the papers are full of stories as to what they do and what they don't do. Thousands and thousands of dollars are spent to get votes to have people vote for or against a constitutional amendment or referendum. So the public is well aware of what is happening and due to the tightness of financial...finances in the State of Nebraska, I would like to ask you to vote to cut this to two times instead of three. Thank you, Mr. President.
