

that we have had problems in school with children being sexually molested and I don't know if this bill would stop it or not. I think maybe it's kind of grown. What I see coming out of it now balloons so and I'm somewhat disappointed in Senator Crosby's list of amendments. I do look at it as a way to harass a bill and I, maybe in all good intentions, not, but all I can say is I've had the opportunity to listen to the debate for the bill, a long list of supporters and it didn't seem so bad, but maybe we are in a sue happy society and maybe we aren't, but the problem is with the school districts being sued by not doing the proper background. Maybe it should be amended to only be nonteaching or nonteaching staff. Seems to me like someone that went through college and earned a teacher's degree, certainly this would maybe be the last thing they would expect, so I'm not sure even how I will vote on the bill. I can see both sides and they were certainly explained to me, the need for the bill, and yet I know that it's offensive to the teaching profession so I guess we can't have it both ways.
