LB 32 would allow for the use of a post office box address instead of a street address on the Nebraska Disclosure and Accountability Commission required disclaimer on printed materials pertaining to a candidate or ballot question. Under the bill, a street address would still be on file with the NADC and required on any reports and filings, but a PO box could be used on any disclaimers distributed to the public.

The Nebraska Accountability and Disclosure Commission anticipates that they would incur one-time costs of $1,000 for reprinting forms and instructional materials. Additionally, the Commission would have one-time costs of $1,000 for the notification and education of persons subject to the amended provision.
