LB496 amends Nebraska §60-6,111 to adopt new protections for the riding or leading of livestock on or across highways. The bill defines livestock as a horse, mule, donkey, cattle, swine, sheep, or goat. Specific rules for motor vehicle operators who come upon livestock being led on highways are stated as follows:

1. Drivers must use caution when approaching or passing people herding livestock;
2. Promptly stop if the livestock handler raises a hand as a distress signal (unless stopping would cause an accident);
3. Turn off their vehicle's engine if requested by the livestock handler; and
4. Yield the right of way to livestock on the highway.

The Nebraska Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) and the Nebraska State Patrol (NSP) have both indicated no fiscal impact.

There is no basis to disagree with these estimates of no fiscal impact.

LB496 proposes for additional measures to be taken by motorist when approaching or passing any person leading or herding livestock on the highway. In addition, the bill would require a motorist to promptly stop the motor vehicle if a distressed signal of raising a hand is provided by the person leading the livestock or turn off the motor vehicle at requested of the person leading the livestock.
